Dear Students and Parents,

I write to update you about plans for this summer's Pennsylvania Governor's School for Global and International Studies at the University of Pittsburgh. Earlier this week, we received word that the University has decided not to hold any in-person classes or events during the summer session. In light of this decision, we must unfortunately cancel this year's Governor's School. The University is acting from an abundance of caution in this unprecedented global situation; in light of the current public health situation and of available information, this is the prudent and responsible course of action. We are of course very disappointed that we are unable to hold this year's Governor's School, but we also know there's no real alternative.

If you have any questions or concerns, please do not hesitate to contact Mrs. Veronica Dristas (dristas@pitt.edu). Again, we regret that we will be unable to work with you this summer, but your health and safety and that of our instructors and team is our highest priority.

Keep well!
